

My Future Dream Job

Cut Nadia Nur Ilena

My dream future job is to be a doctor. I want to help the sick people, most of the doctors I see must be rich and affluent, a large salary increases economic status, high status as a doctor and my parents obsessed their children to be doctor. That's why I want to be a doctor. And I will get a big reward from Allah Swt, Insha'Allah.

To be a doctor I have to learn in science especially biology. After graduate from secondary high school, I will enter the medical school. I have to spend 4 years to learn in medical school. First two years, I'll learn the fundamentals of the medical sciences through study of the core subjects: anatomy, physiology, histology, biochemistry, pathology, pharmacology, and microbiology. The third year, I work with patients under the supervision of experienced physicians in hospitals and clinics, as well as the social skills. The fourth year, I take electives based on my preferred speciality.

A doctor should have a good personal quality. A doctor has to be empathetic, confident, humane, respectful, patient, etc. So, if you want to reach your dream, you have to be smart and be patient. And don't forget to pray to Allah.

My Future Job as a PE Teacher

Omer

In the future I want to be a P.E teacher. P.E stands for physical education. Physical education is about motion, movement of the body. (Resource: Merriamwebster.com Physical Education stands for instruction in the development and care of the body ranging from simple exercises to a course of study providing training in hygiene, gymnastics, and the performance and management of athletic games.)

I will work in a school. I will be working in the educational field. The level of education I will need is bachelor degree. To get a educational degree you have to work hard. The four personal qualities I will need is to treat everyone equally, be fair, give the most I can, encourage. To reach my dream I need a certificate of bachelor degree. Therefore afterschool I plan to take a bachelor study at university.

Future Job

Tsabita Amalia

My job of the future is to be a translator and a writer. A writer is people who write a story either a fiction or non-fiction. A translator is people who translate one language to another language without using Google Translate or any web like that. I want to be a writer because I like to write and I got inspired by great writers all around the world who could inspire people. So through my writing, I want to inspired people too. I want to be a translator because I like to study foreign languages. My field either will be literature, communication, or business. The stuffs I will do probably write short stories first and study foreign language more seriously.

The educations I have to make are graduated from high school with the best score I can and take an undergraduate study in University of Indonesia or usually called UI. In UI I am going to take literature and if I could I want to take communication too. When I got my undergraduate study, I plan to take master degree in Imperial College London, London. But in that college, I am planning to take art. Why I choose art? Because I love art and I like drawing. And when I opened the PDF below:

(<https://workspace.imperial.ac.uk/humanities/Public/files/Evening/Course%20descriptions/Introduction%20to%20Art%2012-13.pdf>) it's all says what we will learn in semester 1 and semester 2. And I got interested in it.

As a translator and a writer, I need to be strong in foreign languages and have a right way of writing a great story. Also, I need to be confident so I have to build my confidence sooner. And I have to be patient, consistent, and serious during my college era.

In conclusion, I have to be strong in languages and have to be more confident.

My Plans for the Future

Nada

I have many plans for the future. I want to have more than one job, but I know it will be hard. But, to be honest, I really want to be a writer and also have my own business. I want to be a writer, because it's my hobby. There was an article on nybooks.com about a woman who became a writer just because it's her hobby. And, I want to have my own business where I can produce things that I enjoy and make a lot of profit out of it. My field will either be literature or international business, where I can improve both my writing and communication skills. The stuffs I will do are probably writing books, and hold my own business.

To become a writer, I definitely need to take literature. To be precise, I want to take either English or French literature. I want to take literature for bachelor here in Indonesia. And, as for my master degree, I would like to take international business, I would like to take it overseas where I can really improve my communication skills. Most likely, I would like to take it in Harvard University. Because, according to <http://grad-schools.usnews.rankingsandreviews.com/>, Harvard is one of the best business school there. I want to graduate my master at the age of approximately 24.

Both skills and attitude are important for all future jobs. On mindtools.com it says that the most needed skill to be an entrepreneur is quick logical thinking and confidence. As for me, I need to start building and improving both my communication and writing skills. As for my attitude, I need to start to be more confident when doing a public speaking, because I know it's very important and I also need to manage my time better. By managing my time in a better way, I can also improve my punctuality, patience, responsibility, and also my quick thinking skills. The most important thing that I probably need to improve is to verbally explain my ideas and to solve problems more quickly.

I just hope the best for myself and the others so we can reach our goals, and hopefully with all the hard work that we will try to build, we all can be successful one day. As for myself, I want to achieve it all with all my effort. I just hope that one day, I'll be able to achieve it all, and make my parents proud.
